MESSAGE FROM THE DEAN

“A chain is as strong as its weakest link”.

Healthcare is teamwork. The role of each health care member in the team, be it the doctor, the nursing professional or the paramedical professional is important in its own unique way. Trained manpower is an essential pillar of foundation needed for the efficient delivery of healthcare services. However, the glaring shortage of well-trained paramedical professionals in our country, especially in the state of Uttar Pradesh is quite evident. A fresh impetus to manpower development, with a focus on training paramedical workers is being given in recent years. As a part of overall development of healthcare facilities, a huge enhancement in job opportunities for paramedics is expected in the near future.

King George Medical University run a number of paramedical courses providing young aspirants with the platform to fulfil their dreams of becoming an integral part of the healthcare system and offering them a bright and rewarding future. The training provided here is aimed to produce well-trained paramedical professionals, with high moral and ethical standards, who become an asset to the healthcare delivery systems and can act as frontline workers whenever the situation demands.

As one walks into the campus of this distinguished institution, one is filled with awe and admiration for the sheer grandeur of its buildings of Indo-Saracenic style. More importantly, within these century-old walls lies a 'Temple of knowledge'. The pulsating OPDs overflowing with patients and more than 4000 bedded indoor facilities provide ample clinical material and learning opportunity which is difficult to match for any medical institution. The students passing from this institution proudly carry the feeling of being a 'Georgian' and are valued by prospective employers for their knowledge and expertise.

As the Dean of Faculty of Paramedical Sciences, KGMU, I wholeheartedly welcome students to be a part of this journey of learning to become a paramedical professional and will take this opportunity to remind students of the qualities of a prodigious student-

“काकचेष्टा, बकोध्यानं,
स्वाननिद्रातथैवच।
अल्पहारी, गृहत्यागी,
विद्यार्थीपंचलक्षणं॥“

Wishing you all the best in life
