Ph.D. Programme – Rules & Regulations

1. History

King George's Medical University, Uttar Pradesh (KGMU) is one of the oldest and most reputed medical institutions in the country. It is the 5th Medical University in the country and the 1st in Uttar Pradesh. The university is committed to excellence in the field of medical education, health care services and research. It serves the role of integrating modern medicine into the resource deficient environment in a developing country like India.

The history of KGMU dates back to 1870 when the Maharaja of Vijaynagaram first floated the idea of starting a medical college in Lucknow. This was recommended in 1905 to the Governor of India and the dream finally took shape with notable efforts & contributions from the Maharajas of Balrampur and Ayodhya, Raja of Jehangirabad, Rana Sheoraj Singh & Nawab Yusuf Ali. Prince of Wales laid the foundation stone on 26th Dec 1906 on the banks of River Gomti. The medical college was formally opened in Oct. 1911 by the then Lt. Governor of United Provinces, Sir John Prescott Hewett. The framework of admissions and the course of study were formulated on the advice of the British General Medical Council and the College became an affiliate of the Allahabad University. The first 226 bedded hospital associated with King George's Medical College came up in 1914 and was called King George's Hospital. KGMC was formally transferred under Lucknow University in 1921. In 1951 the name of King George's Hospital was changed to Gandhi Memorial and Associated Hospitals. Between the periods of 1981 to 1992 the college & hospital were taken over by the state government but the situation again reverted in 1992. In 1979 a Research Cell was established to centralize and facilitate institutional research. The next major milestone in the growth of this Institution was its upgradation as a university, through an act passed by the Govt. of UP on September 16, 2002.
