The Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology has a dedicated Adolescent clinic catering to the needs of adolescent girls. The department provides health initiative aimed at addressing the unique physical, emotional, and psychological needs of adolescent girls. These clinics provide a safe and supportive environment where young girls can seek guidance on issues such as menstruation, nutrition, mental health, reproductive health, and personal hygiene. Trained healthcare professionals offer counselling, health check-ups, and educational sessions to empower girls with knowledge and confidence. The clinic also plays a vital role in early detection of health concerns and promoting healthy lifestyle habits.

711 d: CHILD CARE FACILITIES

1. SHISHU SADAN

The institute has taken significant steps to address the unique challenges that female staff members with children encounter in the workplace. Understanding that balancing professional responsibilities with parenting can be difficult, the institute has established a nurturing facility called SHISHU SADAN. This dedicated space is designed to provide high- quality care and support for the children of its female employees. By doing so, the institute not only promotes a supportive work environment but also empowers its female staff, allowing them to focus on their careers while ensuring their children receive excellent care.

Baby feeding pods are private, comfortable spaces designed for nursing mothers to breastfeed or pump milk in public areas. These pods offer privacy, hygiene, and a peaceful environment. They are equipped with seating, power outlets, and sometimes changing tables, ensuring convenience for both mother and baby. Feeding pods promote inclusivity, support working mothers, and help normalize breastfeeding in public without discomfort or judgment. By providing a safe and supportive environment, feeding pods empower women to care for their infants while maintaining their daily routines, making public spaces more family-friendly and accommodating.

Baby feeding pods are present in the OPD of the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology along with Department of Pediatrics and Department of Pediatric Orthopedics for breast feeding while waiting for consultations.

711 e: OTHER FACILITIES

SANITARY PAD VENDING MACHINE

Sanitary pad vending machines provide convenient and discreet access to menstrual hygiene products, especially in public spaces like colleges, workplaces, and restrooms. These machines empower individuals by ensuring menstrual health products are available anytime, promoting hygiene and reducing embarrassment or stigma. Easy to operate, they dispense pads with the insertion of a coin, token, or via digital payment methods. These machines support gender-inclusive infrastructure and contribute to overall well-being, making them an essential addition to modern, health-conscious facilities on the university campus.
